

History. It has shaped the world we're living in today. Just about every aspect of our life is based on what happened in the past. Bicycles really aren't any different. Each brand has its own unique niche that has been shaped over time much like a river carves a canyon through the Earth's outer crust of dirt.

Here at Haro Bicycles, we've done our fair share of carving paths through dirt over the years. Our roots are solid in the stuff; we got our humble beginnings 30 years ago on the BMX tracks of Southern California. And once we proved ourselves on the track, we moved on to mountain bikes to continue our domination in the dirt. Over the past 3 decades, we've lost count of the number of local, national, and world championships that have been won on our bikes.

Think a company who's better known for its BMX bikes can't make other types of bikes? Think again. BMX races are brutally short and the courses are punishing. Same goes for BMX freestyle parks and dirt jumps. A winning BMX bike needs to maximize traction, harness every ounce of pedaling effort, and be strong enough to survive the big hits but light enough not to be a drag. Sounds like the way all bikes should be built, right? Much of the same technology that we have put into creating the world's best BMX bikes is being put into creating our entire line of world-class bicycles.

Over the years, we've learned a thing or two about building bikes. Our bikes are designed by riders, for riders...they always have been and always will be. We wouldn't dream of putting you on a bike we wouldn't ride ourselves. We demand quality, performance, and durability out of each bicycle we pro-

So whether you live for sweet singletrack or simply cruising your local bike path, Haro has a bike built for carving your own two-wheeled path through life. Take pride in knowing you're aboard a bike that's backed by 30 years of history. History shapes life. Life shapes our minds. Our minds shape our knowledge. Know your history.

Haro Bikes. Ride more.

Intended Use

XC Trail – Moderate to aggressive cross-country riding on trails with varied terrain including technical sections, relatively steep climbs/descents, and natural obstacles including rocks, roots, and moderate jumps. Equipment requirements: hardtail or dual suspension with 4.5" to 5" of travel, balanced climbing and descending capabilities, light and durable.

Recommended models: Flightline Expert, Flightline Comp, Mary XC, Mary SS, Ally XC, Ally SS, Beasley 1/9, Beasley SS, Shift R7, Shift R5, Shift R3, Shift R1, Sonix Expert, Sonix Comp, Sonix, Escape, Escape S

Freeride - Aggressive riding on technical terrain with an emphasis on jumping and descending but versatile enough to climb to the top of the trail. Not designed for all-day epic cross-country rides, but has enough pedaling efficiency to make you earn your downhill run. Equipment requirements: 6" to 7" of travel, heavy-duty construction, and stable handling at high and low speeds.

Recommended models: Extreme X7

All Mountain – Just as the name implies, this is the bike that will take you all over the mountain and even let you experiment with some light freeride. Modern advances in suspension technology make these bikes suitable for longer cross-country rides over a wide variety of terrain. Equipment requirements: about 6" of travel, usually adjustable to some extent, or an aggressive hardtail with a burly frame and a longer-travel fork.

Recommended models: Xeon Comp, Xeon, Extreme X6 Expert, Extreme X6 Comp, Extreme X6, Escape Comp, Escape Sport

Dirt Jump/Urban – Spontaneous riding that includes plenty of jumping, carving, and tricks. These bikes are designed to be ridden on technical, often man-made terrain ranging from dirt jumps to staircases to skate parks. Equipment requirements: overbuilt hardtails with shorter-travel forks, sturdy parts, and a heavy BMX influence.

Recommended models: Steel Reserve 8, Steel Reserve 1, Thread Eight, Thread One

XC Sport – Easy to moderate riding on bike paths, dirt roads, and trails with minimal technical terrain. Equipment requirements: 60-100mm of fork travel, knobby tires for off-road traction, sturdy construction.

Recommended models: Flightline Sport, Flightline 2 DX, Flightline 2, Flightline 1 DX, Flightline Intro, Flightline S, Flightline 24, Flightline 20

Commuting/Fitness – Easy to moderate riding on paved surfaces. Emphasis on comfort and/or function. Equipment requirements: hard-tail frame, rigid forks or short-travel suspension forks (75mm or less), rack/fender mounts, narrower high-pressure tires.

Recommended models: Maxwell, Sanford, Gomez, Roscoe, Heartland Express, Heartland Express LE

Comfort – Easy riding on paved and hardpack surfaces for generally shorter distances. Emphasis on rider comfort. Equipment requirements: lightweight alloy hardtail, short-travel suspension forks (75mm or less), comfortable saddles, wider tires with low tread pattern for improved rolling resistance.

Recommended models: Heartland, Heartland LTD, Heartland DLX

Cruiser - Very easy riding and cruising on paved surfaces which often lead to the shoreline, local pub, or school campus. Big emphasis on rider comfort while maintaining a high level of style with flashy paint and matching accessories. Equipment requirements: rust-free alloy frames and fenders, high-volume tires, swoopy bars, and comfy springer saddles.

Recommended models: Zimzala Buster, Zimzala Maude, Zimzala Cooper, Zimzala Molly, Railer SS, Railer XC

WHAT IS VIRTUAL LINK?

Mountain Bike Action magazine has called the Haro Sonix featuring patented Virtual Link Suspension the "one bike". Mountain Bike magazine said it "goes down as smoothly as your favorite beer". And if that wasn't enough, the Sonix is a past alumni recipient of Mountain Biking Magazine's Cross Country Bike of the Year award. Pretty bold nods from folks who make a living testing all the latest and greatest bikes.

What makes this bike good enough to win praise from some of the harshest critics? That's simple; it's all about the ride. Whether you choose a 120mm-travel Sonix or a 160mm-travel Xeon, each bike delivers confidence-inspiring performance without compromises. There are a lot of different full-suspension bike choices on the market, each one full of its own hype about the way it performs. The difference between us and them is the Virtual Link hype is real. Once you ride one, you'll see that the Sonix and Xeon will devour whatever your local trails choose to dish out.

At first glimpse, the Virtual Link design may seem complex and difficult to comprehend how it works. Mountain Bike Action's Richard Cunningham provided an excellent description in their June 2006 issue:

"Haro's Virtual Link is a new-school suspension design. The linkage utilizes acceleration at the rear tire's contact patch to counter downward thrusts at the crankset to prevent suspension bob. The aluminum chassis looks conventional in profile, but this is an illusion. The bottom bracket is fixed to the swingarm, which eliminates chain tension from the suspension equation. The lower link actually pivots around the bottom bracket shell, and the upper link in housed inside a tunnel in the frame where the shock passes through the seat tube. The novel suspension design is engineered to allow the suspension to operate freely in the second half of its travel while providing a firm pedaling platform in the initial stage of compression."

In a nutshell, chain growth causes suspension bob. Since there isn't a pivot between the bottom bracket and the rear axle, the Virtual Link's chain doesn't grow. With chain growth being physically impossible, the Virtual Link accelerates and climbs similar to a hardtail in the first half of its travel. The Virtual Link design is the elusive solution to pedal kickback that everyone has been looking for. On descents and hard hits, the force applied to the rear wheel will kick the platform into the second half of travel, allowing the Virtual Link's rear suspension to become fully active and suck up the bumps.

All of this techno mumbo-jumbo results in a bike that will help you climb stronger, descend faster, and clean sections of trail you once thought were impossible. Whether you're a weekend warrior or a seasoned dirt veteran, when you feel more confident on your bike, you'll have more fun on the trail. It's all about the ride.

Don't take our word for it...here's what people are saying about our Virtual Link bikes in the MTBR.com reviews:

"I have found my 'one' bike".

"Incredibly efficient AND undeniably confidence inspiring. FUN! And now I don't have to decide which bike to take when I go to Moab".

"Feels solid, suspension works great, brakes feel great. Shifts smooth. No pedal bob. Set the sag like it recommends. There is even the pedal damper that you can crank on to get so there is almost no movement, but even with it barely on, I still don't have any problems with pedal bob. Was scared about full suspension, so I always ran a hardtail but I really like this bike".

"I wouldn't hesitate to run this thing on all day epics".

"The suspension design is great. If you put the right amount of air in the rear shock it handles like a hard tail".

"Everyone told me to get ready for a power loss in a full susp bike, as compared to a hardtail. But I have barely noticed it. I attribute it to the Haro VLS suspension".

"This is a great bike for cross country riders who want a light bike for climbing, yet a robust full suspension setup that can take technical downhill abuse".

"This is the first full suspension bike I have owned and I don't think that I could have gotten a better bike for my size and riding style. It's not a bike that everyone knows until you pass them on the trail. This bike is worth every penny I spent".

- 1. They are incredibly efficient climbers. Why? There is no pivot between the bottom bracket and rear axle; they are in the same structure. With our Virtual Link System, there is no pedal feedback or pedal bob and no chain stretch issues associated an axle path that effectively lengthens or decreases the length of the chainstay as the suspension moves through its stroke. The rear swingarm is the same structure you would find on a hardtail with the exception of being attached to the main frame with a set of links that provide 120mm or 160mm of travel, depending on the model. So, as you climb, your effort is going into getting you up the hill instead of wasted in useless pedal bobbing.
- 2. They are incredible descenders. Why? Again, because of the same reasons why they climb so well, Virtual Link bikes descend equally well. The suspension is totally active over bumps while you can apply the brakes and turn the cranks over to keep up your speed. As you descend and flow through rocks, roots, and stutter bumps, the bike's suspension is working to isolate the rider from the bumps. And because the chainstay length (hence, the chain) never gets longer or shorter, applying the brakes will only slow the bike down. Braking does not cause the rear of the bike to jack up. You can apply power to the pedals, brake and motor through the rough stuff that you can't on any other suspension design.
- 3. They are incredibly well balanced. Why? By having a fairly aggressive head angle combined with 100mm and 140mm travel forks and short chainstays, Virtual Link bikes will carve single track like a slot car. One of the reasons why these bikes are so well balanced is because there is slightly more rear travel than front travel. There are three reasons why you need more travel in the rear than in the front. One, 60% of the rider's weight is over the rear wheel. Two, your weight on the rear wheel is more "dead" since you flex your arms on the front to absorb additional impacts. And three, the rear swingarm has more unsprung weight therefore packs up more on a series of bumps. It's technology that we borrowed from motocross; dirt bikes are often set up with a little more travel in the rear than the front for these same reasons. A quick ride on any of the Virtual Link bikes at one of our demo locations will confirm this balanced feel.

Sonix geometry based on 100mm travel fork. Seat angles and top tube lengths will vary based on rider seat height. Measurements noted are based on approximate tallest seat position. Seat angles will steepen and top tube lengths will decrease with lower seat heights.
